

CHC42021 CERTIFICATE IV IN COMMUNITY SERVICES TRAINEESHIP

FREE

POTENTIAL CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

- Community Services Worker
- Residential Support Worker
- Family Support Worker

This qualification reflects the role of community service workers who provide person-centred services to individuals, groups, and communities. These workers deliver support, advocacy, and interventions across various settings, such as healthcare, social services, housing, and mental health. Their responsibilities include case management, crisis intervention, and assisting individuals in accessing resources. They work to empower people, promote well-being, and improve quality of life, often collaborating with other professionals. This qualification prepares individuals for diverse roles in the community services sector, focusing on enhancing the independence and well-being of those they support.

COURSE INFORMATION

This qualification will be delivered over 12 – 24 months. This traineeship program is suited for trainees/students working in the industry and looking to upskill their knowledge and skills in the sector.

The traineeship program has a blended mode of delivery; a combination of on the job and online face-to-face (via Microsoft Teams) and workplace visits by the Trainer as required and agreed by the trainee, employer and RTO.

TRAINING LOCATIONS

At workplace or virtual classroom via MS Teams.

WA Funding Eligibility Criteria:

Trainees/Students must be a new worker in the community service sector to be eligible for a traineeship program in a full-time or part-time basis in Western Australia.

Who is a "new worker"?

A "new worker" is defined as an employee who has been with their current employer for a period of less than three months full time or 12 months casual or part time.

Who is a "existing worker"?

A person who has already been working for more than three months at full time equivalent is considered to be an existing worker, and would be eligible for an existing worker traineeship. A 'full time equivalent' could be based on part time, casual or full time work; and approved leave is included in the time calculation.
